Discover Alfonso's Heritage & Culture

Alfonso is a first-class municipality located in the province of Cavite, Philippines, encompassing a land area of 64.60 square kilometers, which represents 4.36% of the province's total area.

Historically, Alfonso was originally known as Alas-as, named after the native Alas-as tree. It was once a part of Barrio Lumampong in Indang, Cavite. The town's transformation into an independent municipality was driven by the efforts of two prominent community leaders, Bonifacio Aveo and Felix Del Mundo. On May 16, 1859, it gained its independence and was renamed Alfonso in honor of King Alfonso XII of Spain.

In its early days, Alfonso consisted of seven barrios, which have since been reorganized and renamed. Today, the municipality is composed of 32 barangays, reflecting its growth & development over the years.

Alfonso is also steeped in rich cultural traditions and folk beliefs, with Sanghiyang and Sayaw sa Apoy being two notable rituals. Despite common misconceptions, these practices are distinct from one another.

Sanghiyang, derived from Tagalog words meaning "compatible whole," was initially a pagan ritual later infused with Christian elements. It serves for ancestral worship, mediumistic healing, and preparing for other rituals.

On the other hand, Sayaw sa Apoy, or Firewalking, traces its origins to Noah's Thanksgiving sacrifice. Fire dancers, known as barco, undergo a rigorous initiation process before they dance atop burning coal. Both of these practices underscore Alfonso's vibrant cultural heritage and spiritual traditions.

Alfonso's commitment to preserving its cultural heritage is further exemplified by the annual Alfonso Organiko Festival. This vibrant celebration highlights the town's abundant organic produce while showcasing its rich traditions.

Alfonso's transformation from a humble barrio to a thriving municipality is a testament to its ability to evolve while honoring its roots. This dynamic interplay between progress and tradition has cultivated a unique identity that sets Alfonso apart.
